Fear not, cinephiles! There's a whole world of cinematic treasures waiting to be discovered in the dusty shelves of your local rental store. Here's your guide to the best movies to rent when the new stuff is gone:

Hidden Gems

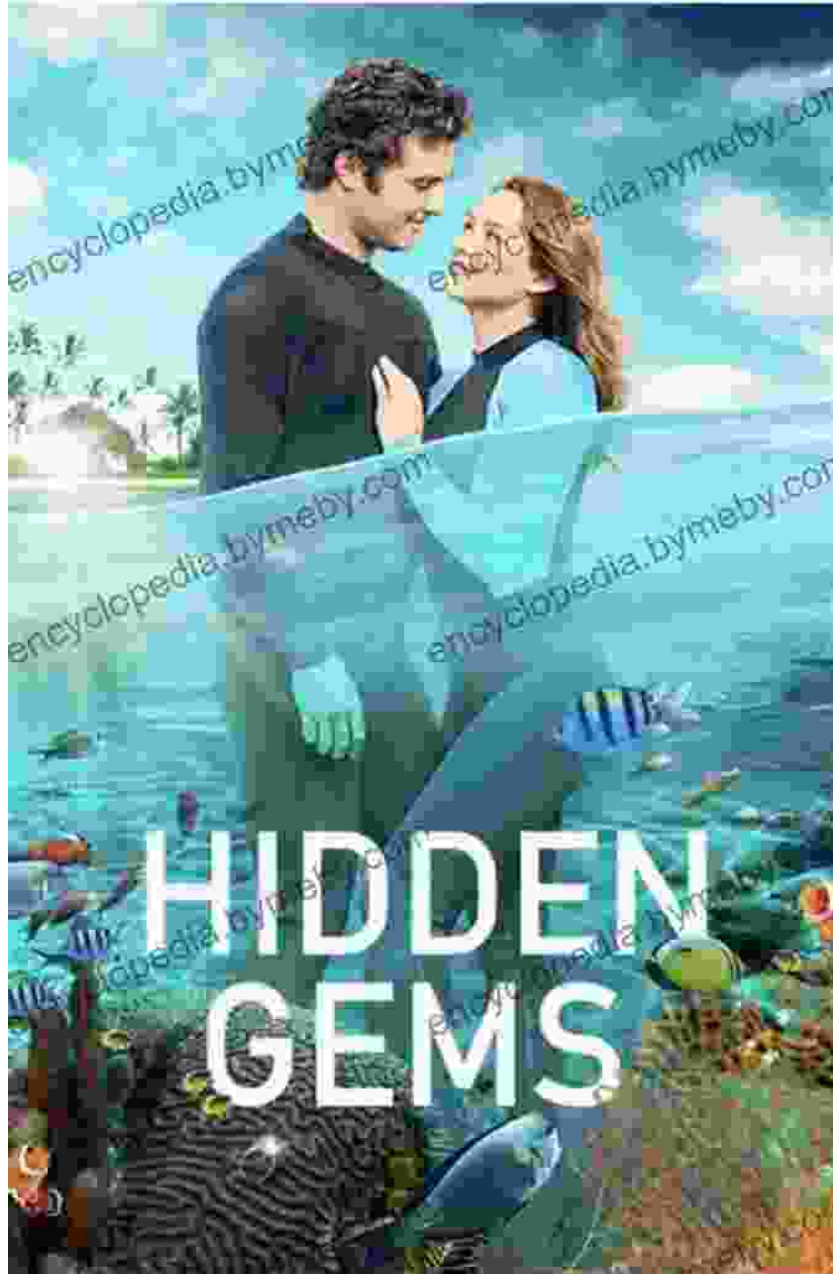

These are films that may have flown under the radar upon their release, but have since gained cult followings or critical acclaim:

- The Squid and the Whale (2005): Noah Baumbach's semi-autobiographical dramedy about a dysfunctional family on the brink of divorce.

- Punch-Drunk Love (2002): Paul Thomas Anderson's quirky romantic comedy about a mild-mannered phone operator who falls for a mysterious woman.

- The Gleaners and I (2000): Agnès Varda's poignant documentary about the lives of people who collect discarded food.

Forgotten Classics

These are films that were once widely acclaimed, but have since faded into obscurity:

- The Apartment (1960): Billy Wilder's hilarious and heartwarming comedy about an office worker who loans out his apartment for illicit affairs.

- In Cold Blood (1967): Richard Brooks' unflinching adaptation of Truman Capote's true crime novel.

- The Third Man (1949): Carol Reed's atmospheric thriller about a writer who investigates the mysterious death of his childhood friend.

Cult Classics

These are films that have developed devoted followings despite, or perhaps because of, their unconventional or offbeat qualities:

- The Rocky Horror Picture Show (1975): Jim Sharman's campy musical about a young couple who stumble upon a strange party.

- Forbidden Planet (1956): Fred M. Wilcox's sci-fi classic inspired by Shakespeare's "The Tempest."

- Eraserhead (1977): David Lynch's surreal and disturbing cult favorite about a man who discovers a monstrous creature in his apartment.

Foreign Films

Don't limit yourself to Hollywood! There's a wealth of great cinema from around the world just waiting to be discovered:

- City of God (2002): Fernando Meirelles' powerful and visually stunning drama about life in a Rio de Janeiro favela.

- Amelie (2001): Jean-Pierre Jeunet's charming and whimsical romantic comedy about a young woman who sets out to improve the lives of others.

- Parasite (2019): Bong Joon-ho's Oscar-winning satire about a poor family who infiltrates a wealthy household.

Documentaries

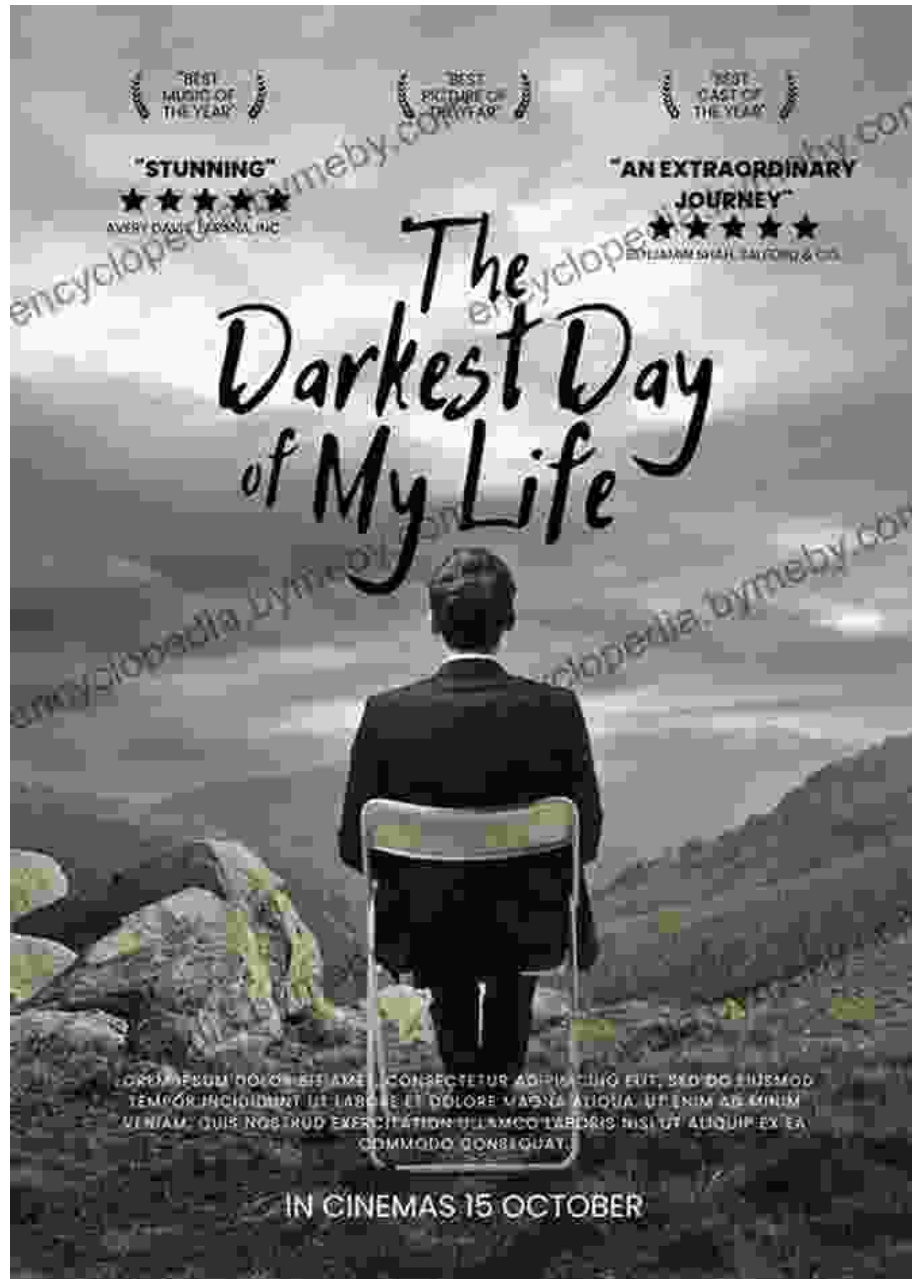

For those who crave something more thought-provoking or educational, documentaries offer a unique window into the world:

- Citizenfour (2014): Laura Poitras' gripping account of Edward Snowden's revelations about the NSA's surveillance program.

- Free Solo (2018): Jimmy Chin and Elizabeth Chai Vasarhelyi's awe-inspiring documentary about climber Alex Honnold's free solo ascent of El Capitan.

- Searching for Sugar Man (2012): Malik Bendjelloul's Oscar-winning documentary about the mysterious disappearance and rediscovery of Sixto Rodriguez, a cult folk musician.

So, the next time you find yourself with a free night and nothing to watch, don't despair! Just head to your local rental store and peruse the shelves for these hidden gems, forgotten classics, and other cinematic treasures.

You're sure to find something that will entertain, inspire, and stay with you long after the credits roll.
