World War II

The Native American people played a significant role in World War II. Over 40,000 Native Americans served in the U.S. military, and they fought in every major theater of war. Native American soldiers were decorated for their bravery and sacrifice, and they helped to secure victory for the Allies.

Civil Rights Movement

The Civil Rights Movement was a time of great change for the Native American people. In the 1950s and 1960s, Native Americans began to organize and fight for their civil rights. They protested discrimination and segregation, and they demanded the right to vote and to have a say in their own government.

American Indian Movement

The American Indian Movement (AIM) was founded in 1968 by a group of young Native American activists. AIM's goal was to fight for the rights of Native Americans and to promote their self-determination. AIM organized protests and demonstrations, and they also provided legal assistance to Native Americans who had been arrested or mistreated.
